

[ENHANCED MEDIA PLAYER]

Abstract

An indexable media player for providing various forms of communications in synchronized form from a remote host. The media player includes a video window, a content window and interactive windows to allow a user to communicate with the remote host. The media player also includes an indexable menu to allow users to select a desired segment for communication. An interactive component also allows collaborative interaction between the users and host of the media communication.